The I.A rules and rates have been standardized to make effective and best possible. An Officer has to travel in order to discharge his duties efficiently and he should travel in the most suitable manner having regard to economy of time and his official status. For doing so he draws such allowances as are admissible under the standardized rules. It is futile to attempt to agree the actual cost of each journey to the actual allowance drawn for it. An officer is not expected to refund any savings and he should not claim reimbursement for any extra cost. The rates have been so adjusted as to be fair on the whole.

In my opinion the foregoing principle may be

PROCEEDINGS OF THE GOVERNMENT OF HIS HIGHNESS THE MAHARAJA OF MYSORE.

GENERAL AND REVENUE DEPARTMENTS.

Order No. Fl. 4729-78—S. & A. 332-15-1, dated 18th March 1916.

The rules regulating travelling allowance have not been framed with the intention of securing to an officer in every instance the exact amount which he spends. Their object is to recoup to an officer on an average and for a number of journeys put together the extra expenditure which he incurs by travelling. Officers may sometimes get more and sometimes less than what they have actually spent for a particular journey, and claim for special treatment in the latter class of cases is against the underlying principles of the Mysore Service Regulation. Government are pleased to draw the attention of all officers to the above principles and to direct that Heads of Departments should not, as a rule, forward to Government claims for special concessions for occasions when the rules may give the officers concerned a less amount in the shape of travelling allowance than what they might have actually spent.
